The Brudner Prize is given posthumously this year to Siddhartha Gautam, in recognition of his work on behalf of LGBT rights and welfare in India, on the occasion of the historical ruling in 2018 against Section 377. Siddhartha Gautam was a Yale alumnus and lawyer who was one of the early members of the AIDS Bhed Bhav Virodhi Andolan, and a co-author of the "Less Than Gay: A Citizen's Report on the Status of Homosexuality in India" (1991). Gautam’s work and activism initiated the challenge to repeal 377.
