

The George Herbert Walker, Jr. Lecture in International Studies

Steps Toward International Climate Governance

December 9, 2020 | 4:30 p.m. EST

The Academy's New Haven Program Committee and Yale University's MacMillan Center invite you to a conversation on climate change policy featuring William Nordhaus, recipient of the 2018 Nobel Prize in Economic Sciences for "integrating climate change into long-running macroeconomic analysis." The program, supported by the George Herbert Walker, Jr. Lecture in International Studies at Yale, will include remarks from Scott Barrett and Pinelopi Goldberg.

Featuring

William Nordhaus

Sterling Professor of Economics, Yale University

Scott Barrett

Lenfest-Earth Institute Professor of Natural Resource Economics, Columbia University

Pinelopi Goldberg

Elihu Professor of Economics, Yale University; Former Chief Economist, The World Bank

With an introduction from Steven Wilkinson, Henry R. Luce Director of the MacMillan Center for International and Area Studies at Yale University. Conversation moderated by David Oxtoby, President of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

Event Date: Wednesday, December 9, 2020

Please register to attend by December 8, 2020.

Register

More Information

Please register to participate in this virtual event. A Zoom link will be included in your confirmation message. Please feel free to share this invitation with any colleagues or contacts who may find this event of interest.

4:30 - 5:45 p.m. Eastern

1:30 - 2:45 p.m. Pacific

For questions, contact Meg Di Maggio, Events Coordinator
617-576-5083; events@amacad.org

